

Plain facts

Telling it ourselves

The Black Friendly Group is a support group for black people with learning difficulties. The Black Friendly Group made a video about what life is like for them. They thought about their own lives. They found out about what has happened to black people in the past.

They found out that:

What has happened to black people has not been written down. Black people told stories to help them remember.

Black people feel that they are still left out. They are left out because they are black and because they have learning difficulties.

Black people need services and supporters who understand how they feel.
